

Report on Roots Tech & Norwegian Lag Week in Salt Lake City, Utah

Planners:
Marilyn Sorensen,
Elaine Hasleton,
Ginny Wegenast,
Shiela Andorfer,
Millie Andorfer
Gary Romsaas,
Laila Christensen
and
Rich Williams

Norwegian Family History Research at the Family History Library

Why a Norwegian research week in SLC?

It provides an opportunity for learning, research and sharing our cultural heritage.

The week includes a get acquainted meeting, several special classes and classes offered by the library.

Special assistance is available from the staff to work on brick walls, translate entries in the records and help working with the book collection.

Most years someone from Norway attends

Technology available to the researcher is excellent with technical guidance on request.

Who should participate?

Lag genealogists, genealogy committee members, lag family history researchers, persons interested in Norwegian genealogy

Norwegian Research Week History

- Five lag genealogists visited SLC in 1987
- Trelag Pilot Week in 2006

Three Year Fellesraad Project

- First Bygdelag Week in 2007
- Second Bygdelag Week in 2008
- Third Bygdelag Week in 2009

Norwegian Lag Week

- Norwegian Lag Week in 2010—2020

Virtual program only this year

- 2021 Monthly zoom meetings with former participants. Roots Tech was virtual

Norwegian Lag Week Future

Based on feedback Norwegian Lag Week (NLW) will follow Roots Tech each year. The week is sponsored by those who attend and planners.

Average Attendance ranges from 15 to 20 persons

Hard at work in the library

*Connecting links with fellow lag
week participants saying goodby til next year.*

